

Our lives are filled with relationships.

Rom 14:7 For not one of us lives
for himself, and not one dies for himself;

As you consider your relationships with others, the first that might come to mind is the relationship of husband and wife. Gen 2:18

Then the Lord God said, "It is not good for the man to be alone; I will make him a helper suitable for him."

I have known a few people in my life who disagreed with this.

Some were afraid of the responsibilities entailed in marriage. Others were simply too afraid of the opposite sex to ever take the risk of rejection involved in courtship.

Women ages 15-44

cohabited before marriage in 1995	34%
in 2006-10	48%

percent of cohabitations transitioning to marriage
at age 20 after 3 years	30%
at age 30 after 3 years	49%

God wanted men and women in a committed relationship.

Heb 13:4 Let marriage be held in honor among all, and let the marriage bed be undefiled; for fornicators and adulterers God will judge.

Marriage generally brings about the relationship between parents and children.

Prior to 1957, the knowledge and ability to prevent conception was extremely limited. In God's eyes, children are a gift of God as those who were barren prayed for children Hannah -1Sam 1:9

Psa 113:5-9 Who is like the LORD our God, Who is enthroned on high, ...(9) He makes the barren woman abide in the house As a joyful mother of children. Praise the LORD!

Psa 127:3 Behold, children are a gift of the LORD,
The fruit of the womb is a reward.

The marriage relationship is often reluctantly entered, as a result of the fear of the responsibilities entailed or the difficulties to be encountered. Women, who have the greatest amount to lose in cohabitation, nevertheless accept it because of a desire for a man.

A more difficult relationship, but more easily severed, is that between friends when we are unwilling to make the changes in our lives that are necessary to cement the relationship.

Courtship involves the exchanging of gifts. Those who are semi-committed to the relationship find that special occasions call for an increase in the size of those gifts. Not one but a dozen roses for Valentines day. A special dinner for a birthday.

We do these things to show the depth of our devotion. A dinner surpasses a soft drink and popcorn at the movies (although perhaps not in price).

And there are those of you who don't think these occasions are of any special importance and may learn to your distress that your wife, fiancé or girlfriend does. The hurt may be small but it will be there.

How do we preserve the relationships in which we find ourselves?

At work, the boss makes certain that we get along with those around us and do our jobs or sooner or later, we get fired. The relationship is severed because of our unwillingness to make the contributions that encourage others to put up with us.

On a talk radio show, a caller said the possible changes in the Social Security law had him rethinking his position. He was 54, out of a job and didn't think his savings would get him to retirement. Social Security was all he was going to have.

He was upset and afraid. The relationships that had spent his life working for were suddenly being terminated and he was having difficulty in re-establishing them. What was he to do?

Whether or not you can sympathize with the fellow or not, there are going to be times in your life when relationships are severed, fail to form or are threatened. What are you going to do?

Behavior modification is what we teach our children. When our behavior doesn't get the expected results, what can we do? Change our behavior!

When your behavior is offensive to someone else, they are going to withdraw from you. Perhaps slowly, sometimes rapidly. Sometimes to a great distance. Sometimes a little.

You may pay a little to a lot of attention to that person. It may not matter that they leave or it may matter a great deal.

Eph 6:4 And, fathers, do not provoke your children to anger;
but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord.

This instruction has to be tempered with the necessity of discipline which may or may not include punishment.

Heb 12:7 It is for discipline that you endure; God deals with you as with sons; for what son is there whom his father does not discipline? 8 But if you are without discipline, of which all have become partakers, then you are illegitimate children and not sons.

In all relationships, we need to carefully consider the consequences of our actions.

Eph 4:31 Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and slander be put away from you, along with all malice. 32 And be kind to one another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, just as God in Christ also has forgiven you.

If we continually reject the counsel of God,
our behavior will be such that we no longer have anything in common with the children of God.

Rom 16:17 Now I urge you, brethren, keep your eye on those who cause dissensions and hindrances contrary to the teaching which you learned, and turn away from them.

If we continually change our ways to follow God, we will attract friends and acquaintances with a like mindset.

2Pet 1:8 For if these qualities are yours and are increasing, they render you neither useless nor unfruitful in the true knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

I have heard young people say, “I don’t ever want to take another class again” when they finish high school.

Those who do not continually modify their behavior to continue to grow are doomed to failure.

The everchanging nature of our relationships must be constantly considered.

Rom 14:7 For not one of us lives for himself, and not one dies for himself;

All too suddenly, this life will be over.

Lk 12:18 "And he said, 'This is what I will do: I will tear down my barns and build larger ones, and there I will store all my grain and my goods. 19 'And I will say to my soul, "Soul, you have many goods laid up for many years to come; take your ease, eat, drink and be merry.'" 20 "But God said to him, 'You fool! This very night your soul is required of you; and now who will own what you have prepared?' 21 "So is the man who lays up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God."

What is your relationship with God and
His children this day?

If you are not a child of God's why not be baptized for the remission of your sins?

Gal 3:26-27 For you are all sons of God through faith in Christ Jesus. (27) For all of you who were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ.

What is your relationship with God and
His children this day?

If you are a child of God's having been baptized for the remission of your sins but have drifted away, why not return?

1Jn 1:9 If we confess our sins, He is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.
